Exceptional Leader from Canada's Capital Selected for Elite Ivey Program

Ottawa, May 18, 2007 – Presidents, chairmen, and CEOs – exceptional business leaders from across Canada gathered last week at the Richard Ivey School of Business in London, Ontario to do their part to shape Canada's economy by challenging their leadership styles, inspiring their business partners, and capitalizing on their growth opportunities.

Peter Andrews, CEO of Grantium Inc., an Ottawa-based software firm operating in Canada and the United States since 1998, was one of 40 elite Canadian business leaders selected to participate in Quantum Shift. This exclusive invitation-only leadership development program was founded by KPMG Enterprise and the Richard Ivey School of Business at the University of Western Ontario. The value of this program is clear when considering that small and medium businesses account for more than 97% of independent business in Canada and nearly half of the country's GNP. Quantum Shift takes Canadian business owners to new heights in innovation and leadership and assists Canadian firms grow their businesses and improve productivity; essential elements for success in a global economy. A review of executive education by the Financial Times ranked Ivey's faculty as the best in Canada and among the top 10 globally, alongside Harvard and Wharton.

Andrews, frequently described as passionate by those who know him and how he drives his business forward, said this about his involvement in the program, "As a company, our mission is to be the leading provider of enterprise scale software products that significantly improve the efficiency, transparency and accountability of grants programs. We want to dominate this market and be the world-class leaders in the field. Quantum Shift has given me an enhanced vision and tools that will allow me to keep Grantium in a position of leadership as it relates to thought, service and product." He added, "Coming out of this experience, I am convinced that to be successful, we must continue to think big, own our market space, and provide leading edge technology and service and that is what we will continue to do."
